Carte Blanche

In reconsidering the classic coastal aesthetic for a bayside home in Sydney, Studio aem turned to Resene for a refreshing colour palette that would add sophistication and depth.

Wanting to offer a more complex, layered take on neutral tones, Studio aem employed a considered use of colour in designing the Inside Outside House, located in the southern Sydney bay of Burraneer. Here, the interior design studio used Resene's Merino range liberally, where variations in the depths of colour delivered a sense of dynamism and movement. Elsewhere, a thoughtful application of deeper hues, like Resene's Tapa in the bathrooms and kitchen joinery, made a proud statement of effortless elegance while allowing the cooler-toned whites to pop. Ultimately, Inside Outside House proves how simple, neutral tones can be used to create a final effect that feels as relaxed and laid-back as it does sophisticated, elevated and luxurious — particularly perfect for a home by the water.
